Frederick H. Hackeman CAMP 85

March 2018

A Message From the Commander

Well, we're back on a somewhat regular meeting schedule. The next meeting will be March 15th as noted below. Charlie and I are working to get the correct forms submitted to the Michigan Department. A couple were forms that we didn't realize that were needed to be submitted or had been missed.

I'd like us to start using the meeting ritual - or most of it - at each meeting. The ritual form that I'd like us to use is listed on page 17. So each of the officers mentioned in it should be ready to respond with the appropriate line(s). The SUVCW is a special organization and the Ritual helps to keep us focused on sense of uniqueness ingrained in the SUVCW.

The meeting agenda included many topics that we needed to discuss ranging from meeting schedule, recruitment, Public outreach - getting involved in our local communities, our camp newsletter, the website content enhancements, and the recent Civil War Roundtable meeting and their future events.

Meeting Schedule: There was discussion on maintaining Commander to Page 5

Obituary Notice

The funeral of F.H. Hackeman, who died at his home in Birch Creek Thursday, was held from the residence yesterday afternoon at the 2:00 o'clock and was very largely attended. Mr. Hackeman was very well known in this vicinity, having lived here since 1851. He was born in Germany, 71 years ago, and came to America while still a young man. At the outbreak of the Civil war he enlisted in the 1st Reg. ILL. Light Artillery, Co. L. and served three years. Mr. Hackeman served mostly in the army of West Virginia under such commanders as Wool, Sigel, McClellan and Crook. He was a fine gunner and had a record of some extraordinary feats. On one occasion when his battery was being much annoyed by the fire of a certain Confederate twenty four pounder he [o]pened fire on the piece, which was some two miles away, and, with a well directed shot, knocked it completely off the trunions.

At another time the battery was ambushed while passing through a mountain gap and was considerably cut to pieces. Mr. Hackeman was laid up soon after with a complication of typhoid and rheumatic fever and lay in the hospital for six months in a very precarious condition. He finally rallied somewhat and was mustered out of the service returning to his home where he engaged in farming with side lines of fishing and coopering. He never fully recovered from his long illness in the army hospital and ever since had been in a somewhat palsied condition, his head and hands constantly trembling.

The members of the local Menominee MI G. A. R. post attended the funeral, the deceased having been a member of this organization.

Mr. Hackerman leaves a wife, six sons and two daughters besides a wide circle of friends to mourn his loss.

Berrien County in the American Civil War

TWELFTH INFANTRY.

This regiment had a larger representation than any other from the two counties which are the subject of this history, there being over four hundred men in its ranks from Berrien County and about one hundred from Van Buren. Company B was raised at St. Joseph and vicinity; Company

C, at Buchanan and vicinity; Company E, and parts of Companies F and K, at Niles; and Company I, at and around Berrien Springs. There were also many from Berrien County in the other companies. Company H and part of K were raised in Van Buren County, and there were thirty or forty more from that county in other companies.

The regimental rendezvous was at Niles. It remained there in camp of instruction, busily preparing for its duties in the field, until the 18th of March, 1862, when it set out for St. Louis, with a thousand men and officers on its rolls. From St. Louis it was hurried forward to Pittsburg

Landing, and was stationed in the extreme front of the Union army, about eighty rods from Shiloh Church.

Much has been said about the Union troops being surprised at Shiloh; but Maj. (then lieutenant) S. W. Pearl, of Benton, who was with the 12th at the extreme front, says there was nothing of the kind. The advanced regiments knew from the reports of reconnoitering parties that there was a large Confederate force not far off, and were expecting its approach.* About two o'clock in the morning of the 6th of April, 1862, a reconnoitering party was sent out, met the enemy, and fell back before him to the Union picket line. Meanwhile the 12th and other regiments were put in line of battle, and moved to a point about one hundred rods in front of their color-line, and there, about six o'clock in the morning, they began the fight with the advancing enemy.

The Confederate commanders hurled heavy columns against the comparatively few regiments at the front of the field, and steadily drove them back. All day long the battle raged in the forests of Tennessee, the Union troops being slowly but steadily forced back until six o'clock in the evening, when they stood near the banks of the Tennessee River, and saw across that stream the welcome reinforcements of Buell.

That night a portion of Buell's army crossed the Tennessee, and in the morning the Union forces took the offensive, and drove back the enemy over the same ground which he had triumphantly traversed the preceding day. During the battle of the 7th this regiment was most of the time in the rear of Buell's army, but it took part in the final charge in the afternoon, when the rebels were driven from the field. In this battle the 12th suffered severely having about forty men killed and eighty wounded.

After the surrender of Corinth the 12th was ordered to Jackson, Tenn., and was on duty at that place and Bolivar during a large part of the summer and autumn of 1862.

When Gens. Price and Van Dorn were defeated in their attempt to recapture Corinth, on the 3d and 4th of October, the 12th was a part of the force sent by Gen. Grant from Bolivar, under Gen. Hurlbut, to cut off the retreat of the defeated army. Gen. Hurlbut's command met the retreating Confederates at the bridge over the Hatchie River, some fifteen miles west of Corinth, on the 5th of October, the point being sometimes called Metamora.

A very sanguinary battle ensued, which, for the numbers engaged, was one of the hardest of the war. The portion of the Confederate army which had crossed the river were attacked on the west side and driven back, and then, amid a storm of shot and shell, the 12th and other regiments crossed the bridge, and drove the enemy from his position on the west side. His attempt to escape at this point was completely foiled, though the greater part of his army made their way across the river at a point several miles farther south.

After the battle of the Hatchie the 12th returned to Bolivar, where it remained until the 4th of November. From that time until the 31st of May, 1863, it was engaged in guarding the Mississippi Central Railway from near Bolivar to Hickory Valley, the regimental headquarters being at Middleburg, Tenn.

On the 24th of December, 1862, one hundred and fifteen of the men, who were in a block-house at Middleburg, under the command of Col. William H. Graves, were surrounded by a whole division of rebel cavalry under Gen. Van Dorn, who had captured over a thousand Union troops at Holly Springs, Miss., and had thence made his way into Tennessee. He demanded the surrender of the post, which was promptly refused by Col. Graves. The rebels then opened fire, and during two hours made desperate efforts to capture the little garrison. The latter, however, gallantly maintained its position, and, as it was well protected, it was able to inflict on the enemy a much greater loss than its own. Finally the assailants withdrew, leaving nine killed and eleven wounded on the field, besides the less severely wounded, whom they took away with them. Fifteen rebel prisoners, including ten officers, were captured. The garrison had six wounded, and lost thirteen prisoners, most of whom were captured while on picket.

In general orders issued from the headquarters of Gen. Grant, the 12th Michigan, and other regiments which had successfully defended their posts, were declared to be "deserving of the thanks of the army, which was in a measure dependent on the road they so nobly defended for supplies."

The regiment remained on duty in West Tennessee during the ensuing winter and the beginning of the spring, but about the last of May embarked on transports at Memphis, and proceeded down the Mississippi, arriving at Chickasaw Bluff, near Vicksburg, on the 3d of June, 1863. It disembarked at Sartatia, on the Yazoo, and marched to Haynes' Bluff, and then closed in towards Vicksburg.

* True, there were no entrenchments, which would certainly have been built under such circumstances at a later period of the war.

a an alternate monthly meeting schedule and/or adding another meeting for sometime in the summer months , or moving a meeting to later in the year (May perhaps) or earlier in the Fall (September). While the current location is more or less central to all members, there was discussion on using a different location.

Recruitment: It has been suggested that everyone try to get one new member to double the camp and bring in new blood to take some leadership positions.

Public Outreach: An umbrella topic that takes in activities such as parades & other ceremonies in our various locales; getting publicity in any local weekly newspapers as well as the Herald-Palladium for our public activities; and the Civil War Roundtable with a information table set up at each meeting.

Website content: I have been in contact with the Michigan Department webmaster who has added more content to our page which may help us stand out a bit more than we had. Content now has some information on Frederick H Hackeman and links to this camp newsletter.

The SVR roots date back to 1881 with the "Cadet Corps" of the Grand Army of the Republic (GAR) – the largest Union Veterans organization which formed in 1866 after the Civil War. The members of the GAR encouraged the formation of their sons as the SUVCW in 1881. These units eventually became known as the Sons of Veterans Reserve, when the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War moved toward a more patriotic and educational organization in design.

Many of the Sons of Union Veterans Camps (local organizations) formed reserve military units which volunteered their services during the Spanish – American War, World War I, and with the National Guard. Just prior to World War I, over 5,000 men wore the blue uniform of the SVR. As late as the 1930's, several states regarded their local SVR units as a military training component. Since World War II, the SVR has evolved into a ceremonial and commemorative organization. In 1962, the National Military Department was created by the SUVCW and consolidated the SVR units under national regulations and command. Since 1962, there have been five SUVCW Brothers that have held the SVR rank of Brigadier General and have had the honor to serve as the Commanding Officer of the SVR.

The purpose of this newsletter is to inform the members of Frederick H. Hackeman Camp 85 of activities and events related to the mission of the SUVCW and its interests.

Though it formed a part of the Union line which prevented escape from, or succor of, the doomed city, and though the men could hear the continual roar of the cannon and see the shells circling gracefully on their mission of death, yet they were not themselves brought under fire during the siege.

On the 28th of July the regiment embarked for Helena, Ark., where it remained until the 13th of August. It then marched with Gen. Steele's army to Little Rock, the capital of Arkansas. Arriving on the 10th of September at a point six miles below that city, on the north side of the Arkansas, the Union troops found the way stopped by Gen. Price with a large Confederate army, strongly entrenched on the north side of the river, with several batteries on the south side. During the night of the 10th this regiment and others were placed close to the river. Early on the morning of the 11th the command was rapidly crossed on pontoons to the south side of the stream, and immediately drove the rebels from their intrenchments on that side. A running fight was maintained all day, the enemy constantly retreating before the advancing Unionists, who entered Little Rock just before nightfall. The 12th suffered no loss during the movement.

On the 26th and 27th the regiment moved from Little Rock to Benton, Ark., but on the 1st of November it returned to the former place. It remained there until the 14th of January, 1864, during which time the larger part of the men re-enlisted, constituting it a veteran volunteer regiment. It then returned to Michigan, arriving at Niles on the 1st day of February, when the men were furloughed for thirty days.

Rendezvousing at Niles in the first part of March, with a large number of recruits, the regiment left on the 21st for Little Rock, where it arrived on the 1st of April. On the 26th it set out for Pine Bluff, marching forty-eight miles in two days, and arriving there on the 28th. Two days later it returned to Little Rock. On the 17th of May it moved to Brownsville, and from Brownsville to Springfield, reaching that place on the 25th, and returning to Little Rock on the 31st; the object of this and many similar marches being to drive away the guerrilla bands which infested the State, but who were extremely difficult to come up with.

On the 25th of June the regiment proceeded by rail to Duvall's Bluff, and thence by steamer to Clarendon, on White River. It engaged the enemy, under Gen. Shelby, on the 26th, having a running fight with him, and chasing him all that day and the next. It then returned to Duvall's Bluff, where it remained encamped until the 30th of August following.

The next move of the 12th was up White River by steamer. It was fired on by guerrillas, on the 4th of September, from the banks of the river, six of its men being killed and wounded. The regiment disembarked as soon as possible, but the chivalry had fled. The next day the regiment moved up the river to Austin, but returned to Duvall's Bluff on the 7th of September.

From this time until the 6th of June, 1865, the headquarters of the regiment were at Duvall's Bluff, the men being stationed there or in the immediate vicinity, and being employed on picket,

Grand Army of the Republic Posts in Berrien County

The Grand Army of the Republic (G.A.R.) was the first truly national veterans organization in the country. Membership was limited to veterans of the American Civil War who served as soldiers, sailors or marines during 1861-1865.

The structure included the National Organization, State level organizations known as Departments and local units known as Posts. All members belonged to a Post. The Post usually met twice a month. Delegates represented the Post at annual meetings of the Department known as Encampments. The Department Encampment elected delegates to attend the annual National Encampments.

Those seeking membership completed applications stating their background and military service. Upon acceptance this information was recorded in a Post Descriptive Book. Financial records, including payment of dues and other related information were kept. Many Posts purchased, or were presented, large bound volumes known as Memorial Books. A page was provided for each member and contained personal background information and the reminiscences of the member about his military service and his closest friends in the service and obituary comments upon his death. Minute Books contain the history of the actions and activities of the Post.

All of the above noted materials are "one of a kind" records. The Post was not required to file copies of this material elsewhere.

Each Post filed Quarterly Reports (later semi-annual, and finally annual reports) of new members, suspensions, drops, transfers and deaths of their members. The Department copies of these reports are found at the State of Michigan Archives. Department headquarters were located in the Capitol Building in Lansing from 1897 to 1956.

The Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War is the heir and successor organization to the Grand Army of the Republic. We are chartered by Act of Congress and are one of the five Allied Orders of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Among the charges given to us by the GAR was that we were to preserve and make available, for research, the records of their Order and information on all who served during the Civil War. In this fashion we would keep alive the memory of the sacrifices they made to secure the future of the country and keep green their memory in the eyes of the nation.

THE GAR RECORDS PROJECT

Among the key objectives of this committee is to do a complete county by county search for materials of the type described.

The results of this activity will lead to the development of a definitive list, by Post, of the surviving records by type, their location and information on a contact person for research purposes.

It is hoped that whenever possible that we will be allowed to make copies of these "one of a kind" materials to assure that the contents of the records are not lost. Copies can then be placed in several locations for preservation. There is no way that these materials could be reconstructed if the originals are lost.

We need to create awareness that in those instances where the holders of these records decide to dispose of them, that they call us first. They need to know that someone is interested in maintaining this important portrait of our history for future generations.

Anyone having information on the location of GAR records, or questions about the project are asked to contact the Chairman:

Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States

Hereditary membership in the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States (MOLLUS) is open to men who are descendants (e.g., great great grandson, great grand nephew, etc.) of commissioned officers of the Union forces during the Civil War. Web site - <http://suvvw.org/mollus/mbrfrm.htm>

Please Note: Non-hereditary membership (Associate Companions) may be available in some (but not all) of the Commanderies. Associate affiliation is based on a percentage of the number of hereditary members in each Commandery. Consequently, movement to elect Associates may be delayed until such time as there are enough hereditary Companions present in the particular Commandery.

scout, provost, and fatigue duties, and especially in guarding the railroad which preserved the communications of troops more advanced.

On the 6th of June the regiment broke camp, and moved by way of Little Rock to Washington, Ark., where it arrived on the 31st. The war was now over, but it was necessary still to employ troops at various points to prevent the depredations of guerrillas, and assure the maintenance of the power of the Union. The 12th was accordingly broken up for that purpose. Companies A, B, C, and F were sent to Camden, where they were under the command of Maj. S. W. Pearl. Company E was stationed at Arkadelphia, and Company D at Paraclifta. The other companies remained at Washington with the headquarters of the regiment. On the 30th of September, Company F was sent from Camden to Champagnolle, on the Washita River, and about the same time the headquarters of the regiment, with Companies H and K, were removed from Washington to Camden.

The various detachments remained at the positions first noted until the forepart of February, when they all assembled at Camden, and on the 15th of that month were mustered out of the service. The regiment then proceeded by steamer down the Washita and Red Rivers to the Mississippi, and up that stream to Cairo, and thence by rail to Jackson, Mich. It was paid off and discharged on the 6th day of March, 1866.

The fortunes of war were such that the 12th Infantry did not meet the enemy on as many fields of battle as did some of its comrade organizations, but it performed faithfully all the duties entrusted to it, and its record from first to last was a credit to its members and to the State. The losses of the 12th during its term of service numbered four hundred and thirty-two deaths by disease and in battle, this being the largest death-record of any Michigan regiment excepting only the 6th Infantry, in which the corresponding loss was five hundred and forty-two.

I therefore believe it is my duty to my Country to love it; to support its Constitution; to obey its laws; to respect its Flag; and to defend it against all enemies.

Commander: Brothers, we will now give the Pledge of Allegiance.

Camp (in unison): I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands; one Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.
